TRANSCRIPT :

PART 1.

Speaker 1: The best thing and the worst thing about my job are the customers. I love meeting people and helping them to choose what they want to buy, but some customers are so difficult, they're just impossible to keep happy. And then they say, 'Ooh, your clothes are really expensive, aren't they?' I just want to tell them 'I don't decide the prices, do I? I just work here.'

Speaker 2: I need to be very creative in my job. I'm always thinking of new materials, new combinations of colours, new styles. I can never repeat myself. People want their clothes to be original, different. It's my job to create those clothes.

Speaker 3: Well, I think I'm well-organised. It's essential in my job. There are the phone calls, emails, customers coming and wanting information, the people in the office asking me for things. I'm always giving people messages and all day people are going past the desk and stopping to chat.

Speaker 4: My job can be quite stressful. You need special qualifications and training to do it. I'm responsible for designing special computer systems for my customers. Sometimes I work for banks or big offices. The salary isn't bad when you work for big companies.

PART 2.

Sarah: Hey, Sam, do you know Edinburgh? Do you know what it's like?

Samuel: Yeah, I went there last year. I loved it. It's brilliant! You must go!

Sarah: Was there much to do there?

Samuel: Well, because it's the capital, people think it's a really big city. We went in August and the International festival and the Fringe festival were on. Edinburgh's really famous for its festivals.

Sarah: Oh really? What kind of festivals?

Samuel: They're arts and culture festivals. We saw concerts, comedy shows, plays ... There were a lot of events in the streets too. August is a great time to go.

Sarah: What about sightseeing? Is there anything interesting to see?

Samuel: Yes. We visited the castle. It was really cool. It's on the top of this great rock. When we climbed to the top, we had a spectacular view of the city.

Sarah: My friend says the food's good there, too.

Samuel: Yeah, we ate really well. We had shortbread every day. Do you know what shortbread is? It's a type of biscuit that they make really well in Scotland. I remember we bought shortbread and souvenirs on the Royal Mile. It's a really famous road that goes down from the castle back into the city. We walked all along the Royal Mile. It took ages because my mum wanted to look in every different shop, and my dad stopped and took hundreds of photos!
